The views from here are spectacular, looking towards Lion Island in Sydney. Before 1788 the area was known as Brisbane Water and the home of the coastal Guringai (Ku-ring-gai) people. The Guringai occupied an area which extended from the northern side of Sydney Harbour, then along the coast to the lower reaches of Lake Macquarie. The Darkingung people occupied a huge area, reaching west of Mangrove Creek to Rylstone, north to Cessnock and Wollombi areas. Return this afternoon back to Forresters Resort to rest up before we open the bar and enjoy our Terranova farewell dinner.
